the office in breathless haste and announced that Blenz & Danzeisen, the popular butchers on the west side of the Old Square, wanted to see a reporter immediately, and there was nothing for the scribe to do but jump into his ulster and accompany the messenger to the place designated above. On arriving there Mr. Blenz, who were his blandest smile, informed the reporter that he had some good news to communicate which he wanted printed for the numerous readers of the REPUBLIpartner had cast about early in the spring of the year and picked out three likely young cattle and fattened them for the them, and fed them, and when they were weighed last "Victoria" weighed 2100 pounds, "Gen. Grant," 1600 pounds, and Bright Eyes," 1575 pounds. Monday afternoon they were killed, said the butcher, and the public is invited to call at the shop at any time during Wednesday and procure large and juicy roasts, tender steaks, etc., for Christmas day, at the usual prices. "Victoria" was a magpificent looking heifer, and her like was never seen in this or any other city. The steer "Gen, Grant" was so named because of his quiet disposition, and his success in a horning contest when thoroughly aroused. "Bright Eyes" was the belle of the pasture, and it was with some hesitation that the butchers decided to kill her.
